Strategies for NDRT Success

Okay, here are some tips that worked wonders for me – think of them as secret weapons:

- Time Management is Key: The NDRT is all about timing. Practice pacing yourself. Use timers during your practice sessions. This will help you get used to the pressure of the clock.
- Vocabulary is Your Friend: A strong vocabulary is a huge advantage. Work on expanding your vocabulary—even looking up words you don't know in the test passages will help a lot!
- Focus on Keywords: Pay close attention to keywords in the questions and passages. These words often point you towards the correct answer.
- Don't Get Stuck: If you're stuck on a question, skip it and move on. You can always come back to it later.

- Practice Different Question Types: The NDRT includes various question types, including multiple choice, true/false, and vocabulary questions. Practice each question type so you feel confident on test day.

Sample Questions and Approach

Example 1 (Reading Comprehension):

Passage about the history of coffee

Question: According to the passage, what was the primary reason for coffee's initial popularity?

- a. Its delicious taste.
- b. Its energizing effects.
- c. Its affordability.
- d. Its social aspects.

How to approach it: Go back to the passage and find the part that answers the question directly. Look for keywords like “popularity,” “reason,” and “initial.”

Example 2 (Vocabulary):

The word "obstinate" in the passage most nearly means:

- a. agreeable
- b. stubborn
- c. intelligent
- d. flexible

How to approach it: Use context clues in the passage to determine the meaning of the word. If you don't know the word, try thinking about words with similar meanings.

Example 3 (Inference):

The author implies that...

This type of question wants you to make a logical assumption based on the information given. Think deeply about what the text suggests beyond what it says directly.

NDRT and Job Interviews

If the NDRT is part of a job application process, be prepared for related questions. These questions might include:

- Tell me about your reading habits.
- How do you approach challenging reading material?
- How do you manage your time when completing reading tasks?
- Describe a time when you had to analyze a complex document to make a decision.
- How do you handle information overload?
